Forecast for Monday 11 Sep 2023

Weather: Turning cloudier during the early hours with a few pockets of drizzle at times. After a cloudy and locally murky start on Monday, brightening up with sunny intervals developing. Showers may then develop, turning locally heavy with a risk of thunderstorms. These should however be well scattered and many places will stay dry. Another humid and warm day but not quite as hot as recently.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 20% becoming 60%.

Low cloud and visibility: Periods of low cloud above 500m during the morning, lifting to 550-600m and turning patchier by the afternoon. Often poor or very poor visibility during the morning with hill fog. Otherwise generally good, albeit quite hazy, though locally poor in any afternoon showers.
